CORRECTION

In my first issue I made an error in the dates for the essay contests I know some of you downloaded the first issue before it could be corrected. Here are the correct dates and I do this because of the importance of these dates.

October 31, essays to post for judging

November 15, to District for judging

December 15 to Department final judging

The VFW Department has asked me to enlist all Districts to get there winners to Department as soon as possible after judging s o they can accomplish there judging as early as possible.

Again remember the winners are presented at the Mid Winter Conference

Committee chairman should follow up with the schools with reminders of the

IMPORTANT INFORMATION

I Want to talk to all of you out there about the schools and their art departments. In my travels I have found out just how bad it is for Art teachers to do justice to there students because of the funding they get. In most cases the art teachers use their own money to buy supplies for there students What I would like to see is all the auxiliaries in the state adopt a school and do a fund raiser to help that school with art supplies. And as a suggestion go talk to the art teacher you want to sponsor and get a list of there needs, and fill that list as best you can.

Remember this is what we do!

Our young essay contestants are really brilliant budding adults in process. And anyone who has ever listened to the essays written will attest to that. Remember the topics this year are
